Married

Mr. J. R. Shinault and Miss Marena Stevenson were happily married Sunday November 19, 1916 at 2:30 p. m. at the forks of the Jackson and Mount Moriah roads. There was quite a crowd gathered there to look on the happy couple as M. J. Boothe said the words that blended two lives into one. We wish them a long and happy life and much success. M. J. B.

Special to Fayette County Justices of the Peace

The Falcon is copying the following article from the last issue of the Southern Ruralist because it fits exactly the conditions we may expect here in Fayette county by the end of another year. Here is the appeal of a two-horse farmer for help, after he has been having the advice of farm papers and demonstration agents for years. He is the typical farmer who has refused to listen to these agencies and make preparations to live under boll weevil conditions. We have hundreds just such in this county and they must have somebody to help them when the boll weevil reaches this county in its destructive force as it is sure to do before another fall. We have deluded ourselves into believing our winters will be too severe for the existence of this pest, but other sections have deluded themselves just as we have done, and in time the weevil came right along and got in his work. Fayette county can have the service of a demonstration agent continued at a cost to her of only $600. Of this the county court is asked to appropriate $500 and though you had but just learned of the existence of a new pest, and had full confidence in the ability of the Ruralist to protect you. Your faith in us is flattering, but really we would have more appreciated your acknowledgment that the Ruralist had forearmed you for the fight you propose to make.

There is no remedy for the weevil except in good farm methods; no way to destroy them except by certain approved farm practice. These methods and this practice have been described in the Ruralist scores of times. The Federal and State Governments have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in securing and publishing facts which have been placed at your disposal. The Federal Government has maintained a demonstration agent in your county for several years who has devoted his time chiefly to practically preparing individual farmers against the coming weevil. The State has repeatedly sent its expert agents into your county to tell and show you what to do for self protection.

Yet after all this effort the weevil appears and you come to the Ruralist for a method by which your enemy may be destroyed. What would you think of a business man who had sure knowledge in advance that fire was to attack the other $100 will be raised by subscription as formerly. We appeal to every member of the court to give this matter serious consideration and look the coming danger squarely in the face before deciding to vote against this appropriation at the January term of the court.

Editor RURALIST—I am a farmer. I run a two-horse farm and I have been planting cotton every year for my money crop. But the time has come when I can no longer plant cotton for the boll weevil. They are in our midst and are ruining my cotton. Can you give me a remedy that will help to destroy them? If not, will you tell me what I can plant for a money crop?

Can you tell me where I can get a market for pumpkins and kershaws for next year? I would also like to raise tobacco. When should it be planted and how should it be cured, by sun, shade, or steam? Where can I get a market for it?

I am a reader of the Ruralist and would not do without it. G. L. Autreyville, Ga.

Reply—Thousands of farmers will be situated exactly like yourself next year. From them will go up the same cry: "What shall I do to be saved?" Though we shall attempt to reply to your specific queries we shall endeavor to meet the conditions of the great number of your fellow sufferers.

We shall first say some things we would rather not say. We may possibly hurt your feelings. Our only object is to help you, and temporarily hurting your feelings may be the surest way to impress a few indispensable things upon your mind.

The boll weevil has been steadily approaching you for more than a dozen years. Its steady progress has been constantly announced, and the date of its arrival quite accurately foretold. During all this time the united effort of the Federal and State Departments, agricultural colleges, experiment stations and agricultural papers has been exerted to prepare you for the day now at hand and to devise an effectual defense against your approaching enemy. Yet you now ask for a "remedy" as his property in the near future, yet when the flames broke out carried no insurance?

You would surely condemn his business judgement. Say weevil instead of fire and your case is identical with his. The weevil has come. Let us hope that your delayed preparedness—insurance—will lead to greater determination in the effort you have now found necessary for protection.

We shall not go into details of practical methods of growing cotton under weevil conditions. The point we wish to impress upon you is that cotton may be and is successfully grown in spite of the weevil. The presence of the weevil does not necessarily mean the abandonment of cotton. It does mean the following of certain well-defined methods of working the crop. Primarily it means better farming—the growing of more cotton on fewer acres, early varieties, high fertilization, planting in checks, working in both directions, constant cultivation. In a word intensive farming—concentration on less than ten acres per plow—means cotton in spite of the weevil—cotton for both the weevil and the grower.

Not no cotton but fewer acres of cotton should be the rule. We believe cotton should still remain the chief money crop of the cotton belt. Of course fewer acres of cotton mean more acres in certain other crops. The selection of these other crops must depend on local and personal conditions. In a general way more food and forage crops must be the solution. Present high prices of all such crops help the proposition. Livestock must be an important means toward the end. You are particularly fortunate in having a modern packing plant in your county offering good market for stock.

The one work we think has greater importance for you today than any other word in the English language is HOG! Peanuts we consider a crop holding great promise. Kershaws can be made generally profitable only by canning. The demand for canned kershaws and pumpkins is always large. Tobacco is a special crop which we do not recommend for general consideration. Above all things get in touch with your county demonstration agent. The whole Federal Demonstration work was begun and has been largely developed for protection against weevil conditions. The bulletins of the Federal Department of Agriculture, Farm Demonstration Service, the State College of Agriculture, and State Department of Agriculture should become your text-books. They tell you how, and show you what others have done. It is your turn next!

EDUCATIONAL.

The teachers of Fayette county met in regular session at the High School building in Somerville on last Saturday. From what observation the writer has had it would seem that the teachers of this county are earnest and progressive. It is believed that they compare favorably with those of any county.

Prof. Wilson who is at the head of the Manual Training Department of the West Tennessee State Normal was with us. Mr. Wilson gave a most interesting talk on the subject of industrial training in our schools. The speaker gave figures from the United States Commissioner of education showing that out of one hundred pupils who enroll in our public schools one third drop out before the fifth grade is finished; only sixteen finish the high school, and less than two go thru college. The speaker urged that something must be radically wrong with a system that produces such results. The old time-honored cultural course, he argued, has failed to reach the mass of the people. Therefore, it was urged, we must make our school system of more vital interest to the child and to the parent. The problem, it was admitted, is a big one, but Prof. Wilson believes that in as much as this is an agricultural country that much might be accomplished by a wider teaching of agriculture. Some of the principles of Domestic Science and Home Economics, he maintains, may be introduced even under most adverse circumstances. By thus bringing our schools in line to be of direct benefit to the future home makers of our country, we may accomplish much.

The thoughts advanced are worthy of earnest consideration by both teachers and friends of education generally. It is the trend of all progressive thought that we must get away from the superficial and theoretical and make our work real and practical. "C"

My Dear Superintendent:

Enclosed you will find regulations and program for the examination December 22-23. Please have program published in your county paper.

Every State examination held yet has shown many signs of irregularity from different parts of the State. I am ashamed of this and hope it may never occur again. I know you will do your part to break this up by seeing that the regulations for the examination are strictly observed.

Please warn your teachers against waiting for the July examination as no certificate from this examination is promised before September 15, and no teacher can legally be paid for teaching done before certificate is received.

Three examinations will be given as follows December 22-23, the last of May and the middle of July.

Very respectfully, S. W. Sherrill.

Recently the State Rural School Supervisor, who is constantly visiting schools, spent some time in Fayette county winding up his work at Braden. After visiting the school there he remarked that it was the best three-teacher school he had visited in the state. Of course this is a matter of satisfaction and legitimate pride not only to the local school people at Braden but to these of Fayette county as well.

Following is the program of Elementary Examinations for December 22: 8 to 9 Spelling, 9 to 11 Arithmetic, 11 to 12 Reading Circle. 1 to 2:30 Grammar, 2:30 to 4 Reading.
Saturday 8 to 9 Writing, 9 to 10:30 Physiology, 10:30 to 12 Geography, 1 to 2:30 U. S. History, 2:30 to 4 Tennessee History.

High School Friday 8 to 9 Spelling, 9 to 10:30 Grammar, 10:30 to 12:30 American Literature, Arithmetic, Cicero, Physics or Cooking, (owing to group being taken), 1:30 to 3:30 Rhetoric, Geometry, Tenn. History, Virgil, Physical Geography, Household Sanitation, 3:30 to 5 English Literature, Algebra, English History, First Year and Caesar, Chemistry, Sewing.

Saturday, December 23, 8 to 10 Reading Circle, 10 to 12 General History, Agriculture, 1 to 3 American History, Biology, 3 to 4:30 Civic, Physiology.

The Tennessee Teachers' Association will convene in annual session in Nashville on Thursday night, November 30th, 1916, at eight o'clock. Sessions will also be held on Friday and Saturday following. An unusually strong program has been arranged, and a large attendance is expected. There will be special railroad rates to Nashville at this time.

The program is in the hands of the printers and will be mailed to the various State, County and City School officials, and to the members of the Association early next week. The Tennessee Teachers' Association has been a strong factor in the educational development of the State, and its officials and the Education Department of the State hope to make this the best attended and most successful meeting in its history.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 14c. J. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
